All O*NET Assessment/Counseling Tools are copyrighted. O*NET is a trademark of DOL/ETA.

The DOL/ETA developed the O*NET Career Exploration Tools as career counseling, career planning, and exploration tools. In order for each tool to provide an objective assessment, extensive research and development was conducted to ensure that the directions, format, items, and score reports lead to valid assessment. DOL/ETA adhered to the high standards of the American Psychological Association, the American Education Research Association, and the National Council on Measurement in Education in developing the O*NET Career Exploration Tools. In developing the tools, fairness analyses were conducted to ensure that score results were equally valid both from a statistical and a usability perspective.

Results provided from the O*NET Career Exploration Tools are part of a whole-person approach to the assessment process. They provide useful information that individuals can use to identify their strengths, the parts of work they like to do, and the parts of work that they may find important. Individuals can use results to identify training needs and occupations that they may wish to explore further. Individuals are strongly encouraged to use additional information about themselves with O*NET Career Exploration results when making career decisions.

As such, the use of the O*NET Career Exploration Tools is authorized for career exploration, career planning, and career counseling purposes only. Each O*NET Career Exploration Tool must be used consistent with its own “User’s Guide.” No other use of these tools or any part of the tools is valid or authorized.

The Work Importance Locator: How Can It Help You?

Recently, you took the Work Importance Locator to learn more about your work values. To help you think about and identify your work values, the Work Importance Locator asked you to rank different aspects of work that represent six important work values. Knowing your work values can help you decide what kinds of jobs and careers you might want to explore.

You already have scored your Work Importance Locator. Remember, you can use your results to explore careers that may satisfy what is important to you in an occupation. Your results should not be used for employment or hiring decisions. Employers, education programs, or other job related programs should not use your results as part of a screening process for jobs or training.

Now, continue reading to learn about your strongest work values and how you can use them to explore the world of work.

What Are Your Highest Work Value Scores?

In the spaces below and on page 10, copy your two highest work values scores and the names of those work values from page 6 of the Work Importance Locator:

Your Highest Score: _____

Name Of Work Value: _____

Your Next Highest Score: _____

Name Of Work Value: _____

Using Your Work Values to Explore Careers

You can use your work values to explore careers. Work values are good to use because you probably will find that occupations that meet your work values will be more satisfying and rewarding for you than occupations that don't meet your work values.

On the next pages, you can learn more about your work values and how you can use them to explore the world of work.

The following sections will give steps for you to follow to use your work value scores in identifying groups of occupations to explore.

Remember, though, that work values are just some of the information that you can use to explore careers. Other useful information about yourself:

- your abilities,
- your interests,
- experience,
- education, and
- motivation

are also important in exploring careers. The more aspects of yourself that you use to explore careers, the better chance you have of finding satisfying work.

What Your Work Values Mean

You can think of work values as aspects of work that are important to you. The Work Importance Locator measures the importance to you of the six work values listed below. At the very least, please read the definitions for your two highest work values to get a better understanding of these work values for exploring jobs.

Achievement

If Achievement is your highest work value, look for jobs that let you use your best abilities. Look for work where you can see the results of your efforts. Explore jobs where you can get the feeling of accomplishment.

Independence

If Independence is your highest work value, look for jobs where they let you do things on your own initiative. Explore work where you can make decisions on your own.

Recognition

If Recognition is your highest work value, explore jobs with good possibilities for advancement. Look for work with prestige or with the potential for leadership.

Relationships

If Relationships is your highest work value, look for jobs where your co-workers are friendly. Look for work that lets you be of service to others. Explore jobs that do not make you do anything that goes against your sense of right and wrong.

Support

If Support is your highest work value, look for jobs where the company stands behind its workers and where the workers are comfortable with management’s style of supervision. Explore work in companies with a reputation for competent, considerate, and fair management.

Working Conditions

If Working Conditions is your highest work value, consider pay, job security, and good working conditions when looking at jobs. Look for work that suits your work style. Some people like to be busy all the time, or work alone, or have many different things to do. Explore jobs where you can take best advantage of your particular work style.

What Occupations Are Linked with Your Work Values?

Now that you know your important work values and have read their descriptions, you are ready to find the occupations that are linked with your work values.

To help you identify occupations that you will likely find satisfying, this score report provides six occupational lists, one for each of the six Work Values Areas. Each list shows the occupations that link best with that Work Values Area.

You will notice that each of the lists of occupations is divided into five Job Zones. Each Job Zone contains occupations that require about the same amount of education, training, and/or experience. Knowing your Job Zone can help you focus your career exploration.

Read below to find out about the Job Zones and how to pick your Job Zone. To explore occupations on this score report, you will need to know your Job Zone as well as your Highest Work Values. (If you have already picked a Job Zone, turn to pages 5 and 10 and write your Job Zone(s) in the spaces provided.)

What Is a Job Zone?

A Job Zone is a group of occupations that are similar in these ways:

- how most people get into the job,
- how much overall experience people need to do the job,
- how much education people need to do the job, and

- how much on-the-job training people need to do the job.

In other words, the occupations in a Job Zone require similar amounts of preparation. By picking a Job Zone, you will be able to narrow down your career search.

The five Job Zones are:

- Job Zone 1 — occupations that need Little or No preparation

Job Zone 2 — occupations that need Some preparation

Job Zone 3 — occupations that need Medium preparation

Job Zone 4 — occupations that need Considerable preparation

Job Zone 5 — occupations that need Extensive preparation

To help you explore occupations, you can think about Job Zones in two ways:

- your current Job Zone and
- your future Job Zone.

Current Job Zone: If you want to explore occupations at your current level of preparation, choose the Job Zone that best matches the amount of training, education, and experience you have now. This is your Current Job Zone, the zone with jobs that need the level of preparation you have right now.

Future Job Zone: If you want to explore occupations based on your future level of preparation (for example, after you finish high school, technical training, or college), choose the Job Zone that best matches the experience, training, and education you expect to have in the future. This is your Future Job Zone, the zone with jobs you eventually would have the knowledge and skills to do.

Job Zone Definitions

To get a better idea of what they mean, read the following Job Zone definitions:

Job Zone 1: Little or No Preparation Needed

Overall Experience — No previous work-related skill, knowledge, or experience is needed for these occupations. For example, a person can become a general office clerk even if he/she has never worked in an office before.

Education — These occupations may require a high school diploma or GED certificate. Some may require a formal training course to obtain a license.

Job Training — Employees in these occupations need anywhere from a few days to a few months of training. Usually, an experienced worker could show you how to do the job.

Examples — These occupations involve following instructions and helping others. Examples include bus drivers, forest and conservation workers, general office clerks, home health aides, and waiters/waitresses.

Job Zone 2: Some Preparation Needed

Overall Experience — Some previous work-related skill, knowledge, or experience may be helpful in these occupations, but usually is not needed. For example, a drywall installer might benefit from experience installing drywall, but an inexperienced person could still learn to be an installer with little difficulty.

Education — These occupations usually require a high school diploma and may require some vocational training or job-related course work. In some cases, an associate’s or bachelor’s degree could be needed.

Job Training — Employees in these occupations need anywhere from a few months to one year of working with experienced employees.

Examples — These occupations often involve using your knowledge and skills to help others. Examples include drywall installers, fire inspectors, flight attendants, pharmacy technicians, retail salespersons, and tellers.

Job Zone 3: Medium Preparation Needed

Overall Experience — Previous work-related skill, knowledge, or experience is required for these occupations. For example, an electrician must have completed three or four years of apprenticeship or several years of vocational training, and often have passed a licensing exam, in order to perform the job.

Education — Most occupations in this zone require training in vocational schools, related on-the-job experience, or an associate’s degree. Some may require a bachelor’s degree.

Job Training — Employees in these occupations usually need one or two years of training involving both on-the-job experience and informal training with experienced workers.

Examples — These occupations usually involve using communication and organizational skills to coordinate, supervise, manage, or train others to accomplish goals. Examples include dental assistants, electricians, fish and game wardens, legal secretaries, personnel recruiters, and recreation workers.

Job Zone 4: Considerable Preparation Needed

Overall Experience — A minimum of two to four years of work-related skill, knowledge, or experience is needed for these occupations. For example, an accountant must complete four years of college and work for several years in accounting to be considered qualified.

Education — Most of these occupations require a four-year bachelor’s degree, but some do not.

Job Training — Employees in these occupations usually need several years of work-related experience, on-the-job training, and/or vocational training.

Examples — Many of these occupations involve coordinating, supervising, managing, or training others. Examples include accountants, chefs and head cooks, computer programmers, historians, and police detectives.

Job Zone 5: Extensive Preparation Needed

Overall Experience — Extensive skill, knowledge, and experience are needed for these occupations. Many require more than five years of experience. For example, surgeons must complete four years of college and an additional five to seven years of specialized medical training to be able to do their job.

Education — A bachelor’s degree is the minimum formal education required for these occupations. However, many also require graduate school. For example, they may require a master’s degree, and some require a Ph.D., M.D., or J.D. (law degree).

Job Training — Employees may need some on-the-job training, but most of these occupations assume that the person will already have the required skills, knowledge, work-related experience, and/or training.

Examples — These occupations often involve coordinating, training, supervising, or managing the activities of others to accomplish goals. Very advanced communication and organizational skills are required. Examples include lawyers, instrumental musicians, physicists, counseling psychologists, and surgeons.

Which Job Zone Suits You Best?

To help you decide if a Job Zone fits you, you might ask yourself:

“Do I have the experience, education, and training needed to do the work for occupations in this Job Zone?” (Current Job Zone)

“Am I willing to get the experience, education, and training needed to do the work for occupations in this Job Zone?” (Future Job Zone)

“Would I like to work in at least some of the occupations in this Job Zone?”

If you answered “yes” to these questions, then you have found your Job Zone(s).

If you answered “no” to these questions, you may want to look at the other Job Zone definitions to find one better suited to your situation.

Write the Job Zone(s) you picked in the space(s) below and in the box on page 10:

Your Current Job Zone: ____ (1, 2, 3, 4, or 5)

Your Future Job Zone: ____ (1, 2, 3, 4, or 5)

 The occupation was assigned to the group based on its second highest work value.
 The occupation was assigned to the group based on its third highest work value.

Exploring Careers Using Your Work Values and Your Job Zone:

Now that you have picked your Job Zone, start exploring occupations in your Highest Work Values Area that are included in your Job Zone. The steps listed below can help you find occupations in your Job Zone that link with your work values.

1. Look at your Highest Work Value occupations.

The six occupational lists begin on page 11. Find the occupational list for your Highest Work Value and look over the occupations that are listed there. Based on your responses to the Work Importance Locator, these are examples of occupations with the best chance of satisfying your work value needs.

2. Review the occupations in your Job Zone.

Review the occupations that are listed in your Job Zone under your Highest Work Value. By choosing this Job Zone, you have indicated that these occupations would best use your current level of knowledge and skills or your future knowledge and skills. Do you see any occupations that you would like to find out more about? Once you have selected occupations to explore, list them in the spaces provided on page 10.

3. Find out more about the occupations.

When you have selected occupations to explore, you can use O*NET™ OnLine, the Occupational Information Network, to find out such information as:

- the types of activities that are performed in those occupations;
- the skills, abilities, education, training, and experience that are needed for them; and
- the wages and future employment outlook that are predicted for the occupations.

4. Check the Work Importance Locator O*NET Occupations Master List.

To see more occupations in your Job Zone that link with your Highest Work Value, ask your teacher or counselor for a copy of the Work Importance Locator O*NET Occupations Master List.

5. Still want more? Check your Job Zone and your next highest work value.

If you don't like the occupations in your Job Zone listed for your Highest Work Value and you don't want to explore them, you have several choices:

- You can review the Job Zone definitions to make sure that you have chosen the Job Zone that best matches your current or future situation.
- If you are satisfied with your choice of Job Zone, you can find the occupational listing for your next highest work value and look at the occupations listed in your Job Zone for that work value. Do any of those occupations appeal to you? If so, you can explore them in O*NET OnLine.
- Also, you can look at the Work Importance Locator O*NET Occupations Master List for more occupations.

6. Want to know about a particular occupation not on your list?

If you want to learn more about an occupation not on your list:

• Look in the “Snapshot” section of O*NET OnLine for that specific occupation.

To access the Snapshot section, click on the “Snapshot” button after you enter O*NET OnLine.

• How high is your score for the occupation’s work value?

- Is the score for that work value close to your two highest scores, showing that it may be a good choice for you, or is it one of your lower scores?
- If that score is one of your four lowest work value scores, the occupation may not be well suited with your work values. You may want to think about why you picked this occupation to explore.

• What is really important to you about this occupation?

- The money you could make?
- The glamour of being in the occupation?
- The excitement of the work?
- The expectations of family and friends?

• If you think you have chosen this occupation for reasons other than the importance of aspects of the work, you may want to do more exploring to be sure that the work will satisfy you.

- Read about the occupation in other reference books or materials to learn more about what the work really involves.
- Take one or more of the other Career Exploration tools to see if the results show that your abilities and your interests support your work values for this occupation.
- Talk to someone working in the occupation to get a feel for what it is really like.

Not Really Sure You Agree with Your Results? (Skip this section if you agree with your results. Go on to “Using Your Work Values with Other Career Exploration Tools” on page 9.)

Perhaps, after reviewing your results, you might think that they don’t really describe your work values as you see them. You may think the descriptions of your highest work values don’t really sound like you. Or, you might not have pictured yourself working in the occupations listed with your highest work values. Don’t worry about it. Here are some things you can do that may give you results you are more comfortable with:

1. Check your card sorting.

Read Step 2 of the instructions again to make sure you sorted the work value cards correctly.

- Did you put exactly four cards in each column?
- Are the most important work value cards in Column 5?

- Are the next most important work value cards in Column 4?
- Are the next most important work value cards in Columns 3 and 2?
- Are the least important work value cards in Column 1?

 The occupation was assigned to the group based on its second highest work value.
 The occupation was assigned to the group based on its third highest work value.

2. Check your scoring.

Read Step 3 again to be sure you figured out your Work Value Scores correctly. Your scores for each of the six work values should fall between 6 and 30.

- Did you put the column number (5, 4, 3, 2, or 1) next to the matching work value card letter on the Work Value Worksheet?
- Check your addition. Did you add up the scores within each colored box correctly?
- Check your multiplication. Did you multiply the sum of your Work Value Scores correctly?
- Remember, your TOTAL score in the box for Working Conditions does not need to be multiplied.
- Did you copy your highest two Work Value Scores from Step 3 to Step 4 correctly?

3. Take another look at the occupations listed for your highest work value.

Look again at the occupations listed for your highest work value.

- Do any of them interest you?
- Are you familiar with all of the occupations listed there? Do you need more information about some of them?
- You can find out more about the occupations in the list by looking at O*NET OnLine. You may find that some of the occupations listed are not what you thought they were. They may fit your work values very well.

4. Use your next highest work value to explore careers.

If you still disagree with your highest work value, look at your next highest work value.

- Read again the definition of your next highest work value. Does it describe your work values better?
- Do the occupations listed for your next highest work value appear to be more in line with your work values? Do you see any that you would want to explore further?

5. Try your work value results out.

You might find that once you use your Work Importance Locator results to explore careers, they really do make sense. Don't give up on your results too soon!

- Look at some occupations that are linked to your highest work value area or areas and see what they are really all about. You might be surprised to find occupations that have the characteristics that are important to you in work and you may want to explore or pursue further!
- Do you know people who work in any of the occupations listed under your highest work value? If you talk with them about what they do on their jobs, you may find that the occupations are just what you would like!

Using Your Work Values with Other Career Exploration Tools

You can use this score report together with the score report for the Interest Profiler to get a better idea of the kinds of careers you might find satisfying and rewarding. Also available from your teacher or counselor is the O*NET Occupations Combined List: Interests and Work Values that allows you to use the results from both instruments at the same time to find occupations that satisfy both your interests and your work values.

The O*NET Career Exploration Tools

As you explore your career options, you should know that other tools will be available to help you. The Work Importance Locator is just one of five tools making up the O*NET Career Exploration Tools. The other tools are:

- ❖ The Work Importance Profiler — a computer-based version of the tool you’ve just used, it helps you decide what is important to you in a job. It can help you identify occupations that you may find satisfying. You provide your responses on a computer.
- ❖ The Computerized Interest Profiler — helps you find out what your work-related interests are.
- ❖ The Interest Profiler (paper version) — is similar to the Computerized Interest Profiler, except that you answer and score the questions by hand.
- ❖ The Ability Profiler — helps you find out what kinds of jobs you can learn to do well. It can help you recognize where your strengths are and where you might need more training or education.

These tools give you three important pieces of information that are valuable to you when exploring careers:

- (1) what is important to you in your world of work,
- (2) what you can do well, and
- (3) what you like to do.

You may use the tools separately or together. You can use them to identify occupations in the world of work that you may want to explore.

 The occupation was assigned to the group based on its second highest work value.
 The occupation was assigned to the group based on its third highest work value.

O*NET Occupations

On the following pages are some of the occupations that are linked with the six work values and the five Job Zones. They are organized first by work value and then by Job Zone within Work Value Area.

If you haven’t already done so, copy your Highest and Next Highest Work Values from page 1 in the boxes below:

Your Highest Work Value: _____

Your Next Highest Work Value:_____
